

Almost 90, This Chicana Hidden Figure Shapes The Future With Her Courageous Past

Uncompromised: The Lupe Anguiano Story, The Unsung Hero.

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif., July 2, 2018, PRNewswire -- "There is a new biography, Uncompromised: The Lupe Anguiano Story, recently published about a Chicana who has been an activist for 60 years. Her book should be used in Chicana/Chicano Studies and Women's Studies throughout the country," says Lora Jo Foo (Author, Attorney, Activist).

Lupe was a Catholic nun for 15 years only to be forced out of the order when she became involved in the Prop 64 fight against housing discrimination and wearing her habit, picketed the Cardinal's office in protest of the church's position. She and Dolores Huerta were the highest-ranking female organizers in the early years of the UFW. Gloria Steinem and Bella Abzug were her contemporaries and she worked with them to form the National Women's Political Caucus and for passage of the ERA. She did amazing work in San Antonio, Texas on getting women off welfare and into sustainable jobs and her program was replicated in Washington State, Colorado, New York, etc. She worked in Washington, D.C. for the Johnson and Carter administrations. She is an incredible woman who in the 1960s was grappling with both Mexican-American and feminist issues. This year she turned 89 and is still very active. In 2015, when she was 85 she gave Ms. Foo an environmental toxic tour of Oxnard in Ventura County. "This is an amazing woman whose story needs to get out there," said Ms. Foo.

The scope of this book is the life of Lupe Anguiano from birth until the age of 80. It was compiled from fifty exclusive recorded interviews conducted with Lupe and key people in her life by Debora Wright. Some of these interviews were conducted while traveling with Lupe to the places of her childhood as well as to San Antonio, the site of her most significant life experience. These transcribed interviews were further augmented by an in-depth study of the Lupe Anguiano papers archived at the UCLA Chicano Studies Research Center. Author Debora Wright uses her keen sense of history and her subject's own words to reveal Lupe Anguiano's loves, sacrifices, victories, failures and deepest thoughts. By far her most successful achievement was in the area of Welfare Reform. Lupe believed that welfare was a trap and disrespectful of women. She gained national media recognition including a "Getting Off Welfare" segment on "60 Minutes" presented by Harry Reasoner and she received the support of several presidents for her groundbreaking work in welfare reform that spread throughout the United States. Lupe Anguiano's solution to welfare is still relevant today. And in fact, the Center for Work Education and Employment (CWEE) in Colorado is thriving by following the model Lupe developed over 35 years ago.

The book includes the adulatory remarks of Gloria Steinem and Henry Cisneros at the Lupe Anguiano Archive Event at UCLA.
